trade in the old fashioned copper still, by dou-ble distillation, just beyond the summit of the Blue Ridge, in Warren county, Va., near the line of Fau-quier, where the softness and purity of the moun-

paper, wearing a pair of cowhide boots and dressed in the costume of a female Dutch cook, will proceed to the middle of the wire, with a common clay pipe as a balancing pole, driving before him a hog and cow, and carrying on his back a cooking stove, a coop of chickens, a bed and bedding, a keg of lager beer, a barber's chair, and various cooking utensils. He will then unload himself and immediately go to bed. After a snooze of fifteen minutes he will rise, dress himself, take a glass of beer, milk the cow, kill the hog and dress it, cook fresh pork for breakfast, after which he will eat a wolf's meal. He will then throw one hundred and thirty summersaults, sucking an egg while in the air at each evolution, alighting at last on the tip of the cow's horn, and while in this position will take the chicken coop, and after having taken the chickens out one at a time and wrung their necks consecutively, will balance the coop on the tip end of his nose, balance the cooking stove on his right hand thumb, balance the bedstead on his left thumb, at the same time finishing the beer and making a Dutch speech to the admiring crowds on either shore. After which-after bor and producing a more brilliant polish than any the manner of Levi North's celebrated one horse act-the "Local" will perform the one cow act. The foreman of this paper will them come out on the wire, blindfolded and shackled, walking on his hands. Then there will be a representation of Heenan and Morrissey's prize fight, in which the "Local" and foremen will exchange sundry knocks and kicks, and black eyes.
